Subject: Comps on the 59.2 acre and 136.27 acre pieces

Brian,

After looking at the comps on the 59.2 acre piece, I came to a price of $50,000 which is $845/acre. Everything I found in the comps >$1000/acre had much more going for it than this piece. The negatives I had were, no right of way to the property, no electric, some timber but under 480A program, not adjacent to stateland but it is within walking distance. There were a hoandful of comps in the $850 - $950/acre range but all had access. I didn't want to take it much below that range thinking that another adjacent landowner may look to buy it.

After looking at the comps on the 136.27 acre piece, I came to a price of $130,000 which is $950/acre. Again, most everything I found in the comps >$1000/acre had more attributes than this one. The negatives I had were, very small amount of road frontage, seasonal use road, seller wants to retain mineral rights, some timber value but again under 480A, no electric. Some of the positives were, had some decent log roads, definitely room for a cabin, state land across road. My gut tells me I might be a little low here, but this was my initial assessment.

When you get the chance, give me a call and let me know what you think. The comps are in my sharepoint folder. Thanks.
